

1993 HONDA AUTOMOBILES

Accord SE Sedan shown in Cashmere Metallic

Honda sets the standard for style, comfort, safety and driving performance with a complete line of quality automobiles. Now Honda breaks new ground with the introduction of the Civic Coupe, the Civic del Sol, the Prelude VTEC and the Accord SE. Like every Honda, these cars include a standard driver's side airbag SRS. Many models also feature a Honda-designed anti-lock braking system (ABS). While much has changed in 1993, the Honda commitment to quality craftsmanship, value and reliability remains.

The all-new Civic del Sol was designed from the top down to be more fun per gallon than just about anything else you can drive. The removable roof panel opens up a whole new world of possibilities. There are two models to choose from. The del Sol S, for fun. And for even more fun, the del Sol Si.

del Sol S includes: Driver's Side Airbag SRS, 1.5 Liter, 102-hp Engine with PGM-FI, 4-Wheel Double Wishbone Suspension, 5-Speed Manual or Available 4-Speed Automatic Transmission, Power Steering (AT only), Removable Roof Panel with Trunk-Mounted Storage Rack, Power Side and Rear Windows, Full Wheel Covers, Beverage Holder
Si adds: 1.6 Liter, 125-hp Engine with Variable Valve Timing and PGM-FI, Power Steering, 4-Wheel Disc Brakes, 14" Alloy Wheels, Cruise Control

Did you know that last year three out of five Hondas and four out of five Accords sold in this country were made right here in America? Well, Ohio, to be exact. In fact, over the last ten years, Honda has invested more than three billion dollars in manufacturing plants in Marysville, Anna and East Liberty, Ohio, in addition to engineering and research and development facilities across the U.S. In total, over 14,000 Americans help develop and build Honda products. You can't argue with the numbers.
